Why undertake Strategic Planning

- Inefficiencies cost many organizations as much as 20 to 30 percent of their revenue each year.
- An average small business loses approximately $190,000 each year through inefficiency.
- Industry challenges such as: Burden of Regulation, economic uncertainty, rising costs, difficulties accessing finance, pressure to lower prices, competition and attracting & retaining staff translate into significant operational and managerial inefficiencies.
- In our simple but highly significant estimation, we may not have listed inefficiencies that you are familiar with in your business however the calculation clearly shows that these inefficiencies are realistic and can add up to a very significant amount of money.
- This money is NOT a 'cost of doing business' – it is profit being stripped from your business.
- Your cost inefficiency is circa $190,000 per year, and that is a lot of money.

The question is, 'What could you do with $190,000 in extra profit?'

- Develop a new product or service offering to grow your business
- Invest in new equipment
- Pay off the mortgage or business loan faster
- Realise true revenue and establish increased efficiency
- Take a 'real' holiday
